

MUCH HAS BEEN DONE.

Toward Establishing Nationhood in Canada, Says Dr. Falconer.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Dr. R. A. Falconer, president of the Toronto university, addressing the Ottawa club, on the bright outlook in public life, expressed the view that, while much in the direction of establishing broader nationhood had been accomplished, some consolidation, the Dominion was not yet out of danger. The student difficulty was experienced in settling the jury several jurors already charged by the crown having to be recalled. On Friday the prisoner's counsel appeared for the first time, the prisoner having already been confined three months in the mounted police guard room, and the jury having recommended the prisoner to mercy and signed a petition for his release. The crown, through the Crown Counsel, later secured his discharge, after warning the prisoner that it was more for the sake of his wife and family, and speaking of the heinousness of the crime, liberated the prisoner on suspended sentence. In charging, the judge considered that the jury's petition was not altogether proper.

Want Teachers Replaced.

Kingsport, Nov. 17.—The school of pedagogy management has created a sensation in the city by practically demanding the removal of the teachers and their replacement by experts. The change will necessitate an outlay for salaries and the board of education will refuse to meet it on the ground that the present pedagogues are competent to do the work. If the change in the interests of the school of pedagogy involving expense should be borne by the university and province.

Protest Against C. P. R. Freight Rates.

Winnipeg, Nov. 17.—The Winnipeg branch of the Manufacturers' association and yesterday afternoon, and passed a resolution which was telegraphed to the railway commission, protesting against the new C. P. R. freight schedule and asking the commission to protest against the being put into operation, until it had been further considered.

He Was Not Drowned.

Medford, N.J., Nov. 17.—J. W. Martin, the justice of the peace of Irvine, Ala., whose clothing was found on the river bank here last August, and who was supposed to have been drowned while in battle, came in from Montana on the Crow's Nest line this morning. It is known that he took breakfast at a Chinese restaurant, but he has since disappeared. The Mounted Police are hot on his trail, and will detain him on a charge of wife desertion for a starter.

Ottawa Labor Candidate.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Labor men are putting up P. M. Draper as a candidate for the civic board of control. H. H. Spencer, of the P. M. R. went to Chalk River this morning to investigate the cause of the railway wreck there.

Will Put Money in Circulation.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 17.—The block of Panama bonds issued by the government will probably reach five million. This will serve to draw out a lot of hoarded money, besides affording an opportunity of additional circulation.

The Slaughter of the Deer.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—The deer season has been the greatest for Deer in Ontario for many years. About 100,000 deer have been skinned at the union deer for the past ten days.

ELOQUENT PREACHER IN BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. George T. Webb Speaks Yesterday Morning and Addresses Meeting of Different Churches in the Afternoon.

In the Baptist church yesterday morning the pulpit was occupied by Rev. George T. Webb, International Secretary of the B. Y. P. U., who is now on a tour of the Western Canada in the interests of young people's work. The reverend gentleman, took for his text Matthew 26:27, and the words "mine own with interest." In an eloquent discourse, the speaker discussed the thoughts of his heart, the necessity for the church, and cultivating the talents that had been given to it.

The parable of the talents, from which the text was taken, was first reviewed and talent defined not alone as money, but the powers, gifts, personal qualities that are inherent in each one of us.

The speaker, in his introductory remarks, noted three truths in connection with the parable: First, the Lord expects us to use our talents; second, and we are to be faithful; and third, and we are to be faithful. He then proceeded to discuss the parable, and the Lord's expectation of us, and the Lord's expectation of us, and the Lord's expectation of us.

Second, when the servants received the talents, they were permitted to do with it as they pleased. Not only they had the right to do with it as they pleased, but they were to be faithful. The parable of the talents, which is a striking example of the Lord's expectation of us, is a precious gift, but it is not a burden.

Lastly, after delivering the talents to his servants, the Lord left them free to use them as they pleased, but they were to be faithful. The parable of the talents, which is a striking example of the Lord's expectation of us, is a precious gift, but it is not a burden.

THE REAL LIMITATIONS.

The question before the house is not how much money is not being borrowed by law, but how much we are justified in borrowing by circumstances. The city is entitled by law to borrow nearly $1,000,000. This limit refers only to general debt debentures, and the law does not prevent the city borrowing all it can get over and above this sum by the issue of special debentures for local improvements, payable by frontage tax. Edmonton's legal credit is ample—ample that it would be difficult to locate the bounds beyond which we could not go without interference from the law.

But this is altogether different from saying that we should plunge ahead until halted by fear of legal intervention. There are other bounds to our borrowing power, which may not be so far distant as those fixed by statute, but which would quite as effectively stop our progress and stop a fashion not more pleasant. One of these bounds is the unwillingness of financiers to lend us money, a condition within sight of the Canadian cities at present. Already they have advanced us more than $92 on condition that we pay them back a hundred and that in the meantime we pay interest on the $92 at the rate of 10 per cent. The question is whether we should venture nearer this line or not. If we cross it the refinancing of our money would be a severe blow to the credit of the city, and probably prevent us borrowing in future, save on exorbitant terms. The point to be considered is how much nearer the line it is wise to approach.

Another matter on which we should keep an eye is our ability to repay. To this there is a limit, and a limit which would be reached long before our legal credit was exhausted. Cities, like individuals, must pay without ceasing. They must also repay, and in this material age, repay with weary, and that at a pretty good rate. In the business of paying, there is no material distinction between general debenture debts and local improvement debts. Both must be paid, and paid only and altogether by the ratepayers. We must not delude ourselves with the notion that the general debenture debt constitutes our whole burden. For while the local improvement debentures are repaid by those who receive the benefit from the work the burden widens in its application as new improvements are undertaken, and the goal towards which it tends is one in which all portions of the city would have improvements and all citizens be saddled with local improvement debts. The burden which the ratepayers are now bearing is not only the debt of the general debenture debt, but also the local improvement debentures, making a grand total of $2,000,000. Calculating the discounts at which the total interest charges, which we are now annually paying amount to $100,000. Beside this we must also repay the $2,000,000 sometime within the next forty years—or about $50,000 per year. All told, therefore, it does not appear unreasonable to calculate that the sum of $100,000 must be provided by the ratepayers next year to meet our present obligations on account of debt—a sum equal to about half the total taxes for the present year. The point for the ratepayers to determine is how much heavier burden they would be justified in undertaking at this juncture.

HIS FINISH.

Women's Institute have been slimly attended in Ontario of late, due to it said to farmers' wives being afraid to drive alone on the automobile-infested highways. The diversion of motoring has had much the same effect as if the roads of Ontario were paved with steel and turned into rail-ways. Who travels there does so at his peril, and too often the driver of a fractions horse receives about as much attention from the driver of a motor car as he would from the driver of a locomotive. Hereafter the chauffeur has reigned all but supreme. He has mortared over the highways, swirled along the side-roads, squandered through quiet hamlets, scared horses, smashed pigs, crippled children, run over dogs, worked havoc among the domestic fowls and smothered the sound of the meadows in the aggravating aroma of gasoline. He has had things his own way, but has over-stepped the limit, and his sovereignty totters to its fall. He has trampled on the liberties of the ladies, and his doom is sealed. For the moment he may revel in defiance, but wait till the wife who gets hubby to sit the local M.P.P. cuts him out and tosses him in the meshes of a new Automobile Act.

DIFFERING SPEECHES.

The Toronto News, a journal very friendly to Mr. Borden, says he is "quite free from the reproach of saying one thing in Eastern and the opposite in Western Canada, and that: 'All over these prairie provinces Mr. Borden made substantially the same speech.' Perhaps so, but this a very long way from saying that Mr. Borden is free from the reproach of saying in Eastern what he did not say in Western Canada, and equally far from saying that the speech he delivered 'all over these prairie provinces,' was the speech delivered in the province of Ontario.

To this approach Mr. Borden is open, and to such a degree that the speech he delivered in Western Canada was not the speech he delivered in Eastern Canada, in so far as it related to the subjects in which the people of Western Canada are vitally interested.

In reference to the public domain of the new provinces, for instance, Mr. Borden declared in Halifax that his policy was to turn the lands over to the provincial governments "upon fair terms." In Chatham Ontario Mr. Borden interpreted this vague phrase as meaning that the federal government would "re-adjust" the provincial subsidies, "as the condition of placing the administration of the lands under the local authorities."

Mr. Borden, in Western Canada, said Mr. Borden attach any such condition to his proposal to provincialize the land administration? All the honest gentlemen favored us with the provinces where alone the subject might be expected to be of public concern were assurances that we were capable of administering the lands and that he was willing we should under-stand expense. Neither of these points was seriously doubted by his audience, and neither was it sufficiently novel to require the promise given them. But what surely might have been reasonably expected and realized was that Mr. Borden should accompany these assurances with the condition with which they were accompanied in the other provinces—that in return for the privilege of administering the lands we would be required to surrender the very substantial indemnity now paid in lieu of them. It is true that Mr. Borden did not contradict his statement as made in the eastern cities, but neither did he repeat it, and he alluded to it in any shape, manner or degree. Again, the tariff question was carefully sidestepped by Mr. Borden, at least in this portion of Western Canada. In Halifax he devoted some time to this subject, and laid down as one of the planks in the platform of his government the policy of a tariff which would secure the production of all useful commodities that could be advantageously produced from or by means of our national resources. Throughout Eastern Canada protection was a dominant note in his addresses and a general argument in the tariff the only policy to be reasonably deduced from his remarks. But not a word of this in Edmonton. It is true he did not repudiate the protectionist statements made in Eastern Canada, but neither did he repeat them nor refer to them. True, Mr. Cockburn was put up to deal with the tariff, but the audience were left to draw their own conclusions as to whether Mr. Cockburn spoke for Mr. Borden, for the party or only for Mr. Cockburn.

These omissions could not have been accidental. The omitted sections were integral portions of a speech which Mr. Borden had been repeating almost daily for a month. Their omission left very conspicuous gaps in the speech, made it so far as the people to whom he was talking were chiefly concerned, an entirely different speech from that delivered in Eastern Canada. The omissions could have only been intentional, made with calculated purpose, and that purpose the deception of his hearers in Western Canada. Before those hearers and in their judgment, Mr. Borden stands condemned not of contradicting in Edmonton what he said in Ontario, but of not saying in Edmonton what he said in Ontario on subjects in which Edmonton was most concerned. The speeches may not have been contradictory, but they were different none the less, and the difference was designed to mislead the people of Western Canada.

VAN HORNE IN THE WEST.

Sir William With Party of Capitalists Is in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—Sir William Van Horne, chairman of the board of directors of the Canadian Pacific railway, arrived in the city yesterday from the east on the delayed Imperial Limited. In the private car Salomon Schwab, beside Sir William, were R. J. Whigham, New York, W. K. Whigham, London, England; A. C. Coppi, of the Manhattan-Copple Co. of New York, and W. F. Lynch, Sir William's private secretary.

Although a traffic jammed after the long trip, the great railway man arrived in the very best of health, with his characteristic energy still undimmed by age. Yesterday afternoon Sir William spent an hour or two at the Manitoba club, where he met a number of old friends. After dining at the Royal Alexandra, he passed the quiet evening listening to the music in the parlors of the hotel, and chatting with acquaintances and newspaper men, to whom, however, he made no startling announcements.

LABOR MUST HOLD ALFOOF.

From War in United States Until Military Organizations Are Like Switzerland.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 15.—At the convention of the Federation of Labor, amendments were introduced calling upon congress in the event of an industrial crisis, following the financial panic to find "ways and means" to ameliorate and mitigate the crisis, "without resorting to the use of state, militia and other, for the purpose of building highways, schools, and other public utilities, provided, however, that such work be done at wages, under the eight hour day."

Another resolution called on all members of organized labor to absolutely hold aloof from military organizations, and the United States provides a military system such as that of Switzerland.

Toronto to Vote on Beck Scheme.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—As the result of the conference held in the mayor's office, it is probable that the ratepayers of Toronto will be asked to authorize municipal elections to elect a committee to raise the two million dollars for a plant to distribute electricity to the government transmission line from Niagara. Seven million eight hundred thousand dollars, however, that such work be done at wages, under the eight hour day.

The conference was attended by representatives of the various labor organizations, and the result was that the ratepayers of Toronto will be asked to authorize municipal elections to elect a committee to raise the two million dollars for a plant to distribute electricity to the government transmission line from Niagara. Seven million eight hundred thousand dollars, however, that such work be done at wages, under the eight hour day.

Senators Criticize Roosevelt. New York, Nov. 15.—Long after midnight Wednesday when the members of the National Foundation association were making merry after their dinner at the Hotel Astor, and the reporters had departed, there was a lively hour of speech making in which President Roosevelt was severely criticized for the continued advocacy of centralization of power in Washington. For exclamation John C. Spencer, of Wisconsin. The speech of the evening was made by Senator George Ross, who declared that "England is a republic with hereditary monarchy, while the United States is a limited monarchy with an elected king. Senator Spencer rose quickly from his seat and began: 'I think I can agree largely with our friend, Mr. Ross. There is only too much of this centralizing of power at Washington.'"

Accidentally Shot Himself.

Huntsville, Ala., Nov. 15.—W. Knott, aged 48, accidentally shot himself in the leg while going through a bush, and died of loss of blood. Knott made his first trip into the Lake district, Canada, receiving $40,000 as his share. He was married shortly and by his will his share receives $25,000.

Collected For Oiler Fund.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Eva Johnson was arrested here today on a charge of larceny. She represented herself as a collector for the Oiler memorial fund and succeeded in getting over $300, which she appropriated to her private use. She was sent to jail and Hamilton's office this morning to collect $40 and this led to her arrest.

THERE ARE OTHERS

in the Clothes Cleaning and Dyeing Business besides us, if there wasn't we wouldn't be doing the business that we are; for each one that has started since we established our business three years ago has been doing a certain amount of advertising for us by imitating and "knocking" us. Several have gone out of business for want of work or other reasons, but we still keep on growing. Our work and prices must suit the people, or else we would not be doing the largest Clothes Cleaning and Dyeing Business in Edmonton. We are always busy.

A "Big Stick" isn't always the sole property of a President. Big or little when it comes to a STICK OF LUMBER.

From a lath to the heaviest piece of timber, if it can be had here, 2x6 and more too, it's equally as effective as the "Big Stick" at Washington, D. C. For lumber that all approve of, come here and get it. Price is always a correct one.
